Those Democratic Contests

Close, expensive and exhaustive contest proceedings have been conducted in St. Louis by defeated Democratic candidates for congress and for the legislature with out developing satisfactory evidence of fraud in registration, in voting or in the counting of votes.

Clerical errors, and a few illegal votes, accepted by Democratic and Republican judges alike, changed the official returns slightly for both Democratic and Republican candidates but do not affect the virtue of Republican majorities. The defeated Democratic candidates for Congress have nothing to sustain them before that body and the defeated Democratic candidates for the legislature, who contested the election of their Republican opponents, have been turned down by an intensely partisan majority of an investigating committee of the House.

The commissioner appointed by the Supreme Court to conduct the contest of defeated Democratic candidates for Supreme Judge and for Superintendent of Schools has not begun his work. Prof. Gass, Democratic contestant for Superintendent of Schools has engaged in the banking business at Jefferson City. Judge Valliant, one of the three Supreme Judges relied upon by the Democrats, has been very ill and may not be able to sit in the contest cases. The Supreme Court Commissioner must finish his work and report to the court by May 1. A motion to dismiss the cases is pending in the Supreme Court, based on the contention that the court has no constitutional jurisdiction over election contests and that the statutes conferring jurisdiction are invalid.

Notwithstanding these facts the attorneys for Republican contestants are prepared for any emergency and the Republican State Committee must have money with which to pay expenses incurred and to be incurred. These unfounded and therefore unjust contests must be fought to the end, whatever the end may be. Loyal Republicans will not complacently see the successful candidates of their party "contested" out of the offices given them by the people nor will they withhold their financial support from the State Committee.

A Terrible Explosion

Chicago, Ill., March 9.—The hamlet of Pleasant Prairie, Wis., fifty miles north of Chicago, has been wiped off the map in the most terrific explosion in the history of the powder industry in America. The site of the great works of the Laffin-Rand Powder Company is marked only by a great hole in the ground. The property loss is more than $1,500,000.

Forty men were employed in the plant and it is reported all are dead. So far it has been impossible to verify the report on the mortality.

But the ill fated villager did not suffer alone. All along the lake shore down to Chicago, and on to remote points in Indiana, the earth trembled, buildings were thrown out of plumb and men and women were terrorized by the two distinct shocks that to them mean nothing less than the beginning of a series of earthquakes.

The hundreds of tons of granite in the county building trembled on their foundation. Sky-scrapers hotels and every structure in the loop felt the effect of the terrible explosion.

Twice the earth heaved upward and twice it receded under the concussion. As far west as Elgin the force was such as to drive men and women from their homes in fright. One woman fell dead from the shock in Elgin. Others were hysterical and slight injuries were reported everywhere within a radius of 100 miles of the death-dealing disaster.

The actual time of the blast was 8.31 o'clock. A moment later villages on the north shore and as far south as Chicago avenue, in Chicago, were crowded with half-dressed, frightened and, in some instances hysterical men, women and children.

The flash of the blast was seen distinctly as far south as Evans-ton. It was as if a thousand cannons had been rolled into one and fired with a full charge of powder. The air was rent by an ear-splitting noise, the heavens were lighted for a moment and then a great cloud of smoke rolled away over the lake.

Dogs of South Jefferson

By a Would be Poet
Oh! the dogs do howl at night
How they rove and roam;
Oh! the dogs do bark and fight
Around our quiet home.

How often, oh! how often
When from my dreams I'm roused,
I'll "bless" (?) them in my mind
As round the house they carouse.

'Tis then, 'tis then my mind is turning
To a city in a Turkish land,
Where the dogs still rove the streets,
In a fierce and wolf-like band.

In the morning, in the morning,
When in my bed I lie
Like billows on the ocean surging
They pass before my eye.

When at eve with labor spent
I seek my cheerful fire,
I hear again that canine song—
The singing of the village choir.

I'm thankful, ever thankful,
That in this age and clime,
Paris green and ammunition
Are handy all the time.

For upon the morrow morning,
Ere the sun lights up the east,
I will rally forth to slay
Each starving prowling beast.

Now when I am homeward turning
It is my great delight
To think that they're forever sleeping
Those disturbers of the night.

Press Clippings

Putnam Co. Journal: A woman 67 years of age, who lost her voice 33 years ago, has just had an attack of la grippe and her voice has returned. Never knew before that grippe was good for anything.

Success: Frank had been sent to the hardware store for a thermometer. "Did mother say what size?" asked the clerk. "Oh," answered Frank, "grime the biggest one you've got. It's to warm my bed room with."

It is related of an Irish coachman that, being in failing health, his doctor prescribed more animal food for him. Remembering his case in a few days afterwards he called up Pat at the stable. "Well, Pat," he said, "how are you getting on with the treatment?" "Oh, sure, sir," Pat replied. "OI manage all right with the grain and oats, but it's mighty hard eating the chopped hay."

Chicago Tribune: "Gentlemen" said the lawyer for the defense, in closing his eloquent and impassioned speech, "all I demand for my client at your hands is justice—justice with a large G!" The principal of the district school was on the jury, and the verdict was Guilty—with a large G.

Johnny's mother asked him to go to his grandfather, who was very sick, and say something cheerful. Johnnie was obedient but lacked tact, and on entering his grandfather's room he said: "Grandfather, wouldn't it be nice if you could have soldiers at your funeral."
